Gives Halloween Masque.

A Halloween masque was given by Miss L. Vida Delaney, of Capitol Hill, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Delaney, last evening. The house was decorated with autumn leaves, bunches of corn and pumpkins, while ghosts and jack-o'-lanterns grinned at the guests from unexpected corners.

Fortune telling by a "really, truly" witch, to the accompaniment of the storm outside, proved one of the greatest attractions of the evening. Another feature was a cake walk, in which the prize winners were Miss Jeanette Burgess and Le Roy Norris. Dancing, musical numbers and games appropriate to the occasion completed the program. Those present were Miss Dorothy Schoonmaker, Miss Edith McCormick, Miss Mary Hixler, Miss Catherine Lantell, Miss Mildred Mooney, Miss Mildred von Eiff, Miss Elsie Bowen, Miss Dolores Sanders, Miss Jeanette Burgess, Miss Cecile Sale, Miss Adeline Bassett, Miss Vida Delaney, Messrs. James Stanch, Richard Bassett, Raymond McAllister, Arthur Frangley, Raymond Murray, John Boyd, Le Roy Norris, William Core, Hohmann Kinde, and Randall M. Oiler. Mrs. Mary Ginnell, Mrs. John B. Woodfield, Mrs. K. L. Croxson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Woodfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Delaney.

Mrs. A. K. Gibson was hostess at one of the most original and interesting of the Halloween parties given last evening. Her residence, 1728 S street, was elaborately decorated. The walls were veiled in black and yellow, thickly studded with black owls, white ghosts and the proverbial black cat of the Halloween season. Gay colored autumn leaves were used profusely about the house, and lifelike ghosts and witches were set about in the corners. The table decorations were in black and yellow, with a pumpkin covered with snakes and frogs as a centerpiece.

The entertainment took the form of a party, with dancing and games a feature of the evening. The hostess was most effective as a corset mammy. Miss Adele Gibson was Miss Hopkins, Miss Carrie Gibson, a Spanish girl, and the unmasking of a fearful witch revealed Miss Nannie Gibson.
